I—DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS. By direction of the President under the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved 25 July 1963, the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action is awarded posthumously to:

Major Bruce P. Crandall, Company A, 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion, 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile), Republic of Vietnam, United States Army, for heroism while participating in aerial flight. Major Crandall distinguished himself by heroic action on 14 November 1965 in the Republic of Vietnam while serving as Aircraft Commander and Flight Commander of twenty-five UH1D helicopters on a combat assault and volunteer medical evacuation mission. Major Crandall's flight was lifting troops on a search and destroy mission from Plei Me, Vietnam to a landing zone in the la Drang Valley, approximately ten miles to the west of Plei Me. Four successful airlifts had been completed with no enemy activity. On the fifth and final troop lift, the landing zone came under intense enemy small arms, automatic weapons, mortar and rocket fire as the first eight helicopters landed to discharge troops. The troops on Major Crandall's aircraft suffered six casualties, three wounded and three killed as they were exiting his aircraft. The remaining aircraft waiting to land were ordered to abort, due to the intense fire. Upon returning to his base of operations, Major Crandall learned that a request for medical evacuation had been received. He immediately sought volunteers and with complete disregard for his own personal safety he immediately took off and led two aircraft to the area despite the fact that the landing zone was still under intensive enemy fire. He landed and proceeded to supervise the loading of the seriously wounded soldiers aboard his aircraft. Major Crandall's bravery and daring courage to land under the most extreme hostile fire instilled in the pilots the will and spirit to continue to land in the landing zone under intense enemy fire, and in the ground forces the realization that friendly wounded would be promptly evacuated. This greatly enhanced morale and will to fight at a critical time. After his first medical evacuation, Major Crandall continued to fly into and out of the landing zone throughout the day and into the early evening. He completed fourteen landings on medical evacuation and resupply missions under intense enemy fire and his helicopter often times being the target of fire. He retired from the battlefield only after all possible service had been rendered to the Infantry troops. Major Crandall's acts of bravery and daring courage in the face of a determined enemy were in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Army.

Second Lieutenant Leland B. Fair, Company A, 34th Infantry, Pacific Theater of Operations, United States Army, for gallantry in action near Tuli, Mindanao, Philippine Islands on 4 July 1945. On this day as an Infantry company was attacking along a road leading from Kibangay to Tuli, the leading squad came under intense enemy machine gun fire from pillboxes and from a light machine gun mounted in a tree to the front. Mortar fire also fell on the platoon, and four men were killed instantly and six others were wounded by the initial fire. The fire was so intense that it was impossible to give medical attention to the wounded men who lay on the road in the path of the enemy fire. Second Lieutenant Fair volunteered to take a squad through the jungle to outflank the suspected locations of the enemy from the left. The squad approached the enemy positions from their right rear, and as they came near the first pillbox, they received heavy machine gun, rifle, and grenade fire. Second Lieutenant Fair attacked the pillbox, approaching it from the blind side. With complete disregard for his own safety, he stood in full view of the enemy, fired his rifle and threw grenades into the enclosure, killing the enemy occupants. The men of the squad were inspired by this heroic action and followed Second Lieutenant Fair in advancing on the next pillbox. Four of the enemy pillboxes now brought fire to bear on the squad with machine guns, rifles, and grenades. Second Lieutenant Fair directed the fire of the lead scout and the automatic rifleman on the central pillbox, then left his position and rushed forward under their covering fire to the pillbox. He threw two grenades into the emplacement and disposed of its crew. After disabling the enemy gun in the emplacement, Second Lieutenant Fair moved toward the third pillbox. As he approached, his right hand was injured by fragments of an enemy grenade. Disregarding his wounds, he ordered his men to cover him, and advanced on a fourth pillbox, exposing himself to enemy fire during his rush. He pitched a grenade into the emplacement and called back for the rocket launcher. When the 'bazooka' man arrived, Second Lieutenant Fair directed protective rifle fire on the pillbox, meanwhile loading the bazooka himself. The first rocket blew a small hole in the top of the pillbox and Second Lieutenant Fair tossed grenades into the emplacement through the hole of the roof. He then attacked the remaining pillboxes and destroyed another light machine gun in one of them. Eight pillboxes were destroyed and 22 enemy were killed. Before his squad could leave the area, however, Japanese mortar fire was brought to bear, and two members of the patrol were wounded. A litter was improvised and the wounded were removed. After he had returned to the company and reported the action, it was determined that possibly one forward pillbox might have been missed. Second Lieutenant Fair, although fatigued from the first assault and bleeding from the wound in his right hand, volunteered to return to the enemy area. He took command of a squad from another company to make his second assault, and he moved out in front of the first scout until he arrived at the fortified area. He deployed the squad on the edge of the pillbox area and led them through the abaca. Several additional pillboxes were spotted. Second Lieutenant Fair placed his men in a position to concentrate their fire on the pillboxes, when enemy mortar fire began to fall ahead of the squad. Despite the risk involved, Second Lieutenant Fair moved boldly and aggressively to the pillboxes, and determined that the enemy had withdrawn. After satisfying himself that there were no more in the vicinity, he evacuated the casualties from the first assault. Only then did he agree to submit to medical treatment. By his brilliant and aggressive leadership, and the resolute courage he exhibited in these actions, Second Lieutenant Fair inspired his men to extraordinary efforts and achievements. His matchless feats of valor won for him the respect and admiration of all, and are consistent with the highest traditions of the United States Army.

Sergeant First Class Issac Camacho, Detachment A, 5th Special Forces Group (Airborne), Republic of Vietnam, United States Army, for gallantry in action. Sergeant First Class Camacho distinguished himself by gallantry in action during the early morning on 2 November 1963, when an estimated reinforced battalion of Viet Cong attacked a Special Forces camp at Hiep Hoa, Republic of Vietnam. Taking the camp by complete surprise, the insurgents began their attack with withering automatic weapons and small arms fire followed within a few seconds by an intense mortar barrage. The heavy volume of high and flat trajectory fire pinned down the entire Vietnamese strike force within the compound. At the beginning of the attack, Sergeant First Class Camacho ran from his sleeping area to a mortar position. Having successfully maneuvered through a hail of bullets and mortar fragments, Sergeant First Class Camacho calmly manned the mortar and began to concentrate his fire on the Viet Cong who were attempting to breach the wall of the compound. Disregarding his own personal safety and realizing that he was the only man not pinned down by the Viet Cong, Sergeant First Class Camacho valiantly engaged the enemy until he was ordered by his commanding officer to withdraw from the camp. Reluctantly, he gave up his position and moved into the darkness. In the confusion of battle, Sergeant First Class Camacho and his commanding officer became separated. Sergeant First Class Camacho was captured by the Viet Cong only when he no longer had any means to resist. Sergeant First class Camacho's conspicuous gallantry in action was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

2D BATTALION, 253D INFANTRY

4 APRIL 1945 TO 12 APRIL 1945

The 2nd Battalion, 253rd Infantry Regiment is cited for outstanding and gallant performance of duty against the enemy from 4 to 12 April 1945. The battalion fought with heroism between the Jagst and Kocher Rivers northeast of Heilbronn, Germany, along the Neckar River and extending northeast toward Nurnberg, Germany, where the enemy committed its best available troops in defensive positions along open ridges giving them almost perfect observation and fields of fire. The battalion was constantly at a disadvantage due to a severe dispersion of supporting fire. Early dawn on 4 April, the 2nd Battalion crossed the Jagst River at Entergreisheim and quickly secured a bridgehead. The enemy employed a series of sharp counter-attacks before the battalion could consolidate, using maximum, devastating fire power of tanks directed at individual fox holes and penetrated forward defensive positions. Inspired by the courageous leadership of battalion officers, these counter-attacks were all beaten, but attempts to enlarge the bridgehead were delayed by heavy and accurate enemy artillery fire. Finally, after two days of intense fighting, a vehicular bridge over the Jagst was built and immediately began using armored support. The battalion again encountered heavy fighting as they moved forward and lost three tanks and several men. They continued the attack against extremely heavy opposition, soundly defeating them and capturing the town of Buchof on 6 April. The pursuit of key terrain continued without a casualty until they ran into a violent Infantry unit of 200 to 250 men supported by at least one S/P gun. The battalion was now at approximately sixty percent effective strength, made ready to resume the attack. On 8 April, all three battalions launched a coordinated attack. The 2nd Battalion was to secure the high ground overlooking Steim Am Kocher and pressed the attack to brake the tough core of SS resistance. Whittled down to around 50 men, all Company Commanders in the battalion (except Battalion Headquarters Company) had been killed or wounded, there were no other assigned officers, and a few Noncommissioned Officers. The 2nd Battalion was relieved on 10 April and without even an hours rest, was immediately ordered to move. Though its ranks were decimated, the 2nd Battalion continued the attack and crossed the Kocher River on 13 April to pursue the badly wounded 17th SS which never again could muster enough strength to make a stand. There were approximately 1500 men, having been reinforced with men of the Bitche France Battalion, opposing the regiment in the area between the Jagst and the Kocher Rivers. The bulk of the enemy reinforcements were thrown into the sector of the 2nd Battalion with young fanatic Nazis, former members of the 12th SS Division and Hitler Youth. Many of them chose to die rather than surrender. The combat operations were intense. Of the casualties suffered by the Regiment, 280 were in the 2nd Battalion alone; 54 were killed in action, 211 wounded in action, 16 missing in action, and 18 Battalion officers were casualties. But the 2nd Battalion, with great determination and heroic achievement, ripped the fanatic 17th SS Division to cause it to withdraw from the fight, preventing the enemy from gaining time to prepare the Danube defenses in the National Redoubt area. The achievement of the 2nd Battalion, 253rd Infantry Regiment is a credit to all its officers and men and added a glorious page to the history of the American Infantry.

3D BATTALION, 301ST INFANTRY REGIMENT, 94TH INFANTRY DIVISION

19 FEBRUARY 1945 TO 26 FEBRUARY 1945

This order supersedes United States Total Army Personnel Command, Permanent Orders 128-02, dated 8 May 1998.

The 3d Battalion, 301st Infantry Regiment is cited for extraordinary heroism and outstanding performance of duty in action in Germany during the period 19 February 1945 to 26 February 1945. Fighting incessantly over bare rolling hills and wooded ridges, the 3d Battalion led the drive forward through the Siegfried Switch Line, across the Saar River to the capture and occupation of Serrig, Germany. In the vicinity of Sinz they attacked Munzingen Ridge and swept on through the Das Lee Woods, capturing objective after objective, each surrounded with mine fields, machine gun, pillbox, and anti-tank positions. Three days of unrelenting fighting brought the determined drive to the banks of the Saar River; 317 enemy had been captured, their blockhouses and pillboxes crushed, leaving the Switch Line torn open. Although their strength had been cut to less than half and much equipment was damaged or missing, the 3d Battalion was ordered to continue its drive and cross the Saar River. On 22 February 1945 at 0730, the assault began with a rifle company crossing in assault boats. Enemy machine gun fire ripped through many of the flimsy boats, sinking them, and making further crossings temporarily impossible. The few men who had successfully crossed fought all morning to gain a portion of the town of Serrig which was protected by the intricate Siegfried Line. By noon more boats were brought up and men were again ferried across the river and joined in the fight to take Serrig. By evening the Battalion was across, but had suffered many casualties due to excellent enemy observation and well placed artillery and mortar fire. By 1800, 23 February 1945, after ferocious street fighting, the town had been cleared, house by house, and the Battalion continued advancing to the North and East finally contacting elements of the 376th Infantry Regiment at Beurig, 26 February 1945. In the 8th day of fighting, the Battalion had killed approximately 700 enemy, captured 722 enemy prisoners, crushed over 100 pillboxes, and had destroyed huge amounts of the enemy's equipment including 12 tanks and 15 88mm guns. In spite of the heavy casualties and the fact that the men had faced superior odds, the Battalion had defied the fanatic enemy and was secure behind the Siegfried Switch Line. The unconquerable spirit and self-sacrificing devotion to duty displayed by all are worthy of the highest emulation.

6TH NAVAL BEACH BATTALION

6 JUNE 1944

The 6th Naval Beach Battalion is cited for extraordinary gallantry in action against the enemy on Omaha Beach, Normandy, France, on 6 June 1944. For its part in breaching the defenses of Omaha Beach, a well fortified and bitterly defended position, the 6th Naval Beach Battalion exhibited outstanding courage, determination and devotion to duty. Omaha Beach is located in Normandy, France. The terrain consists of a flat, sandy beach about 400 yards wide at low tide backed by a steep bank of shingle 16 to 18 feet in width forming an effective barrier to the passage of vehicles. Inland of the shingle is a flat, open area about 200 yards wide from which the ground rises precipitously to a rolling plateau of about 100 feet elevation. Imbedded in the cliffs' sides was a long prepared, determined and powerfully implaced enemy. The beach was covered with intricate and almost impenetrable barriers of mine-capped underwater obstacles and an anti-tank ditch 6 to 10 feet deep and 20 to 30 feet wide. The enemy had excellent observation of the entire beach area. The weather was clear and visibility unlimited. At 0730 hours on the morning of 6 June 1944, the first elements of the 6th Naval Beach Battalion reached the beach. Underwater obstacles and enemy artillery damaged or sank most of their landing craft losing valuable equipment and forcing personnel to swim for shore under hostile fire. Assault troops were pinned to the beach by murderous fire from enemy rifle, mortar, machine gun and artillery emplacements. Officers and men of the battalion worked along the side of gap assault teams in clearing obstacles so supplies and troops could cross the tidal flat of the beach. Other elements helped build up a firing line and set up control stations on the beach to direct the landing of crafts. Safe lanes of approach were marked and ship-to-shore communication was established. Movement on the beach was made hazardous by enemy fire and mines which had become detached from obstacles and buried in the sand. During the night, the beach was strafed by enemy aircraft and the imposed blackout hampered the battalion's activities. The extraordinary gallantry, heroism, and determination displayed in overcoming unusual difficulties and hazardous conditions and the esprit de corps displayed by the 6th Naval Beach Battalion contributed materially to the capture of Omaha Beach and reflect highest credit on personnel of this organization and the Armed Forces of the United States.

551ST PARACHUTE INFANTRY BATTALION

7 JANUARY 1945

The 551st Parachute Infantry Battalion is cited for exceptional heroism in performance of duty in combat against the enemy at the beginning of the American counteroffensive in the Ardennes, Belgium, culminating in its heroic attack and seizure of the critical, heavily fortified, regimental German position of Rochelival on the Salm River. A separate battalion attached to the 82nd Airborne Division, the 551st began its grueling days as the Division's spearhead by successfully executing a raid on advanced German positions at Noirefontaine on 27 and 28 December 1944, delivering to XVIII Airborne Corps vital intelligence for the Allied counteroffensive soon to come. On 3 January 1945, the 551st from the division's line of departure at Basse Bodeaux attacked against great odds and secured the imposing ridges of Herispehe. Punished by artillery, mortar, and machine gun fire as it moved across open, up slope terrain, the battalion lost its forward artillery observers, causing an acute lack of artillery support for its week-long push against two German regiments. On 4 January, the battalion conducted a rare fixed bayonet attack of machine gun nests that killed 64 Germans. On 5 and 6 January, the 551st captured the towns of Dairomont and Quartiers, parrying German counterattacks while often fighting in hand-to-hand combat. At less than half strength, on 7 January the battalion confronted its final critical objective: Rochelival on the Salm River. Initially repelled into a hailstorm of artillery and machine gun fire toward a high ridge of entrenched enemy, the 551st finally overwhelmed the defenders and captured Rochelival, shutting off the last bridge of egress to the Germans in a 10-mile sector of the Salm River. The next day, January 8, Hitler ordered the German Army's first pullback from the Battle of the Bulge. In fighting a numerically superior foe with dominant high ground advantage, the 551st lost over four-fifths of its men, including the death of its inspirational commander, Lieutenant Colonel Wood Joerg, as he led the last attack. Disbanded a month later, the battalion accounted for 400 German dead, and took over 300 prisoners. The 551st Parachute Infantry Battalion fought with a tenacity and fervor that was extraordinary. In what United States Army historian Charles MacDonald called 'the greatest battle ever fought by the United States Army,' the 551st demonstrated the very best of the Army tradition of performance of duty in spite of great sacrifice and against all odds.

ANTITANK COMPANY, 242D INFANTRY

9 JANUARY 1945 TO 11 JANUARY 1945

The Antitank Company, 242d Infantry Regiment, 42d Infantry Division is cited for outstanding and gallant performance of duty against the enemy from during the period 9 through 11 January 1945, inclusive, at and near Hatten, France. The Antitank Company was positioned in support of the 1st Battalion, 242d Infantry, on the Main Line of Resistance, with orders to hold their positions at all costs against any attack by enemy armor. On the morning of January 9, 1945, its zone of operation was attacked by three regiments from the 21st and 25th German Panzer Divisions, supported by heavy armor, flame throwing tanks, self propelled guns, infantry and artillery. The Anti-tank gun crews remained steadfast in their positions. The Mine

GO 25

Platoon under fierce fire from the enemy continued to lay their mines on the main street of Hatten. Completely in disregard of their own personal safety, and despite the loss of many of their guns, the company continued to fight tenaciously, side by side with the riflemen of the 1st Battalion for more than 48 hours in face of the enemy. Sixty-six of its men, of a strength of 155, were casualties in the action. The gallantry, determination and esprit de corps, displayed by the Anti-Tank Company, 242d Infantry, exemplify the highest traditions of the armed forces.

MEDICAL DETACHMENT, 124TH INFANTRY REGIMENT, 31ST INFANTRY DIVISION

6 MAY 1945 TO 12 MAY 1945

This order supersedes United States Total Army Personnel Command, Permanent Orders 205-02, dated 24 July 1997.

The Medical Detachment, 124th Infantry Regiment is cited for extraordinary heroism in action against the enemy on Mindanao, Philippine Islands, advancing along the Sayre Highway in support of a mission of seizing the Maramag Air Strip.

MILITARY ASSISTANCE COMMAND, VIETNAM, STUDIES AND OBSERVATION GROUP

24 JANUARY 1964 TO 30 APRIL 1972 and the following assigned or attached units:

U.S. Navy: Naval Advisory Detachment, Danang, Republic of Vietnam; One U.S. Navy EC-121 Aircraft and Crew-based at Saigon, Republic of Vietnam.

U.S. Marine Corps: assigned individually to Studies and Observation Group staffs.

U.S. Air Force: 1st Flight Detachment, Nha Trang, Republic of Vietnam, 24 January 1964 to 31 December 1971; 15th Air Commando Squadron, Nha Trang, Republic of Vietnam, 1 January 1966 to 15 November 1968; 15th Special Operations Squadron, Nha Trang, Republic of Vietnam, 16 November 1968 to 15 November 1970; 90th Special Operations Squadron, Nha Trang, Republic of Vietnam, 16 November 1970 to 30 April 1972; 20th Helicopter Squadron, (less non-Studies and Observation Group Pony Express detachment at Nakhon Phanom AFB, Thailand), Nha Trang, Republic of Vietnam, 1 June 1967 to 31 August 1968; 20th Special Operations Squadron, Nha Trang, Republic of Vietnam, 1 November 1968 to 31 March 1972.

Joint Service: Headquarters, Military Assistance Command, Vietnam-Studies and Observation Group, Saigon, Republic of Vietnam.

South Vietnamese Air Force: 219th Helicopter Squadron, Danang, Republic of Vietnam.

The Studies and Observations Group is cited for extraordinary heroism, great combat achievement and unwavering fidelity while executing unheralded top secret missions deep behind enemy lines across Southeast Asia. Incorporating volunteers from all branches of the Armed Forces, and especially, U.S. Army Special Forces, Special Operations Group's ground, air and sea units fought officially denied actions which contributed immeasurably to the American war effort in Vietnam. Military Assistance Command, Vietnam-Special Operations Group reconnaissance teams composed of Special Forces soldiers and indigenous personnel penetrated the enemy's most dangerous redoubts in the jungled Laotian wilderness and the sanctuaries of eastern Cambodia. Pursued by human trackers and even bloodhounds, these small teams out-manuevered, out-fought and out-ran their numerically superior foe to uncover key enemy facilities, rescue downed pilots, plant wiretaps, mines and electronic sensors, capture valuable enemy prisoners, ambush convoys, discover and assess targets for B-52 strikes, and inflict casualties all out of proportion to their own losses. When enemy counter-measures became dangerously effective, Special Operations Group operators innovated their own counters, from high altitude parachuting and unusual explosive devices, to tactics as old as the French and Indian War. Fighting alongside their Montagnard, Chinese Nung, Cambodian and Vietnamese allies, Special Forces-led Hatchet Force companies and platoons staged daring raids against key enemy facilities in Laos and Cambodia, overran major munitions and supply stockpiles, and blocked enemy highways to choke off the flow of supplies to South Vietnam. Special Operations Group's cross-border operations proved an effective economy-of-force, compelling the North Vietnamese Army to divert 50,000 soldiers to rear area security duties, far from the battlefields of South Vietnam. Supporting these hazardous missions were Special Operations Group's own United States and South Vietnamese Air Force transport and helicopter squadrons, along with U.S. Air Force Forward Air Controllers and helicopter units of the U.S. Army and U.S. Marine Corps. These courageous aviators often flew through heavy fire to extract Special Operations Group operators from seemingly hopeless situations, saving lives by selflessly risking their own. Special Operations Group's Vietnamese naval surface forces—instructed and advised by U.S. Navy SEALs—boldly raided North Vietnam's coast and won surface victories against the North Vietnamese Navy, while indigenous agent teams penetrated the very heartland of North Vietnam. Despite casualties that sometimes became universal, Special Operations Group's operators never wavered, but fought throughout the war with the same flair, fidelity and intrepidity that distinguished Special Operations Group from its beginning. The Studies and Observations Group's combat prowess, martial skills and unacknowledged sacrifices saved many American lives, and provide a paragon for America's future special operations forces.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE SERVICE

1 MAY 1942 TO 2 SEPTEMBER 1945

The Military Intelligence Service is cited for outstanding and gallant performance of duty in action against enemies of the United States from 1 May 1942 to 2 September 1945. The Military Intelligence Service provided superior intelligence collection and dissemination services during World War II to combat forces throughout the world; its members were interpreters, translators, interrogators, propaganda specialists, and signal technicians who worked in every echelon of the United States military establishment and with Allied Forces. The Military Intelligence Service participated in every major battle and campaign in the Asiatic-Pacific Theater of Operations and served in intelligence roles in the United States and in the European Theater of Operations. The more than six thousand linguists were assigned to combat units on every front, primarily in the Pacific Theater, supporting these units with critical interpretation, translation, radio reception, and interrogation services. The Military Intelligence Service not only played key roles in battlefield situations, they also provided United States forces with an unprecedented amount of intimate, authoritative, detailed, and timely information on enemy forces to support planning and execution of combat operations. The key contributions made by the members of the Military Intelligence Service in providing valuable intelligence on military targets helped advance the United States and Allied cause during World War II and undoubtedly saved countless lives and hastened the end of the war. The significant achievements accomplished by the faithful and dedicated service of the linguistic-intelligence specialist graduates of the Military Intelligence Service Language School, who formed the Military Intelligence Service will never be forgotten by our grateful Nation. Their unconquerable spirit and gallant deeds under fire in the face of superior odds, and their self-sacrificing devotion to duty are worthy of the highest emulation.

UNITED STATES COMBAT ASSISTANCE TEAM 70

APRIL 1972 TO JULY 1972

The United States Combat Assistance Team 70 is cited for extraordinary heroism against an armed enemy during the period April 1972 to July 1972. The Combat Assistance Team 70 distinguished themselves in the critical Battle and Siege of An Loc in the Republic of Vietnam. In support of the Army Republic of Vietnam 5th Division, the United States officer—advisors rallied the beleaguered defenders to overcome seemingly insurmountable odds. Though outnumbered by more than 5:1 (36,000 enemy troops to 5,800 defenders), supplied only by air-drops and occasional daring C-130 deliveries and pounded night and day by the war's heaviest and most sustained artillery and tank assaults, An Loc managed to prevail. By coolly coordinating vital United States air support and re-supply, pinpointing B52 strikes to break up enemy attacks, helping to direct perimeter defenses, assuring life-saving food, water and medicine to the Army Republic of Vietnam defenders as well as to some 5000 desperate civilian refugees, and above all by bolstering morale through their example of unflagging determination and Esprit De Corps, the United States Army's An Loc advisers performed a pivotal role in turning back the enemy's massive surprise offensive of 1972. In so doing, they helped to save Saigon for another three years, assured the safe withdrawal of our remaining combat forces, and assisted in making possible the January 1973 peace agreement and release of American Prisoners of War. The United States Army's Combat Assistance Team 70 served nobly in the highest and most honored tradition of the Army and the United States of America.
